

Watching Blues will be cheaper

FOOTBALL: Watching Wycombe Wanderers will be cheaper next season, providing supporters buy Early, Early Bird season tickets.

The Blues will introduce the new cut-price deal before the end of this year's second division campaign as they bid to sell 4,000 season tickets for the 2003/04.

Wanderers are desperate to beat this season's total of 3,600 tickets and the cut price deal is seen as a major weapon in that aim.

The inflation-busting Early, Early Bird tickets, will be cheaper than last year's Early Bird tickets and are expected to be available for sale when Wanderers entertain Cheltenham on April 19.

And in another initiative, Wanderers are also considering introducing a combined Wycombe Wanderers and Wasps season ticket.

The Adams Park club have also promised their supporters a Fans Forum in the Vere Suite on April 17.

Manager Lawrie Sanchez and chairman Ivor Beeks will be taking questions from the floor about the current season and will also answer questions on their plans and aspirations for next year's campaign.
