

Time to bin Wanderers' constitution

I THOUGHT it only fair to reply to the letter in last Friday's Bucks Free Press, by Dale Hurman regarding Wycombe Wanderers' Constitution.

He highlights the football league clubs Luton Town, Oldham Athletic and Wimbledon, clubs which over a period have been taken over by so-called big backers.

At this stage, let me point out that all three finished last season well above us in their respective leagues while Reading (his home town), Cardiff City, Wigan and Fulham, who all have wealthy owners, were visiting Adams Park (now Causeway Stadium of course) not so long ago but are now steaming ahead.

Our constitution is a relic of bygone days, and should be relegated to The Antiques Roadshow.

I feel really sorry for Lawrie Sanchez. He must ponder every night before sleep takes over, with his present injury worries, whether he dare phone the chairman to sanction another striker on loan, while the chairman of the clubs I've mentioned probably say to their manager: "What are you waiting for?"

No wonder Sanchez looks strained. Having to keep us where we are on a shoestring budget is a magnificent achievement.

Now we have so-called supporters not taking up their season tickets, just because bookmakers say we are favourites for relegation, or because the name of the stadium has changed.

At least vote for the Constitution to be deposited where it should have been years ago - In the bin!
