

IT'S MY HARDEST JOB YET

Adams frustrated by poor showing

TONY Adams says managing Wycombe Wanderers is as difficult as anything he has faced in his life.

The Blues boss, who has fought back from alcoholism, made the admission after seeing his team press the self-destruct button in Saturday's 2-0 relegation tussle reversal at Stockport.

He said: "This is as tough as anything I have faced in my life.

"It's frustrating as I know the lads can play.

"I wish I could get on the field and play but that's not for me anymore. I've come to terms with it."

And he added: "My experience tells me that I have never got anything easy. Nothing worthwhile in life has come to me easy so the pleasure is going to be even better when we do get out of this mess."

Adams had a lengthy chat with chairman Ivor Beeks after the defeat, which has left Wycombe eight points adrift of the safety zone, and afterwards he pleaded for patience.

He said: "It's my job over the next two and a half years to put a decent side together.

"It's going to take a little bit of time and more time than a lot of people might want. In the west we want things done overnight but it does take time."

Adams questioned the desire of his players as they failed to match Sammy McIlroy's pumped up Stockport side.

He said: "We didn't deserve to win.

"Too many people lost too many battles and if you lose the battles you lose the war.

"Stockport wanted it more than us and that's just not acceptable

"We just didn't win enough one v one's today, it's as simple as that. When you come away from home, you have got to stand up and be counted and we didn't have enough men to do that."
