

It's not mission impossible - yet

WANDERERS boss Tony Adams has come out fighting after Saturday's 1-0 defeat at Bournemouth left his team 11 points adrift of safety with 11 games left to play.

His players sunk to their knees at the final whistle but Adams has promised he will lift them again in time for Saturday's basement battle against Notts County and the all-ticket game at arch-rivals Colchester United next Tuesday.

He said: "I have got to raise them again."

And even though his team now need snookers to avoid their first ever relegation in the Football League history, Adams won't be raising the white flag.

He said: "We are down the bottom of the table for a reason but this team will not give in.

"We've got 11 games to go and we will fight to the very last.

"The lads are giving me maximum effort. We've still got to play some of the teams at the bottom and if we can beat those, who knows?"

● Blues' game at Colchester on Tuesday, March 16, has been made all-ticket for Wycombe fans.

Tickers are available from the club or at Wanderers in Town or on the credit card hotline (01494 441118). Prices are: adults £13 (terrace), £16 (seated), or £7 and £9 concessions.
