

Hodges rejects Adams' offer

...while McSporran plays a waiting game

WANDERERS' rebuilding plans have been dealt another blow with Plymouth Argyle midfielder Lee Hodges becoming the second player to snub a move to Bucks.

The 30-year-old has decided to stay with the second division champions and has just agreed a new two-year deal with The Pilgrims.

But he admitted the size of Wycombe's 'lucrative' offer did make him and his wife think about turning their back on first division Argyle next year.

He told the Plymouth Evening Herald: "Wycombe came up with a really good offer and it made us think.

"We had to think about it long and hard because of the financial reasons, but we decided to stay.

"At my age, you aren't expecting to get stuff like that, but I'm settled here and there is the lure of the first division, although it doesn't mean to say I'm going to play every game.

"My wife is happy here and she didn't want to move, so that is it."

Hodges, who once spent a spell on loan at Adams Park, is the second player to snub a move to Wycombe this summer.

Colchester's full back Sam Stockley has also resisted overtures from Blues boss Tony

Adams in favour of staying with his current employers.

Adams also looks set to miss out on central defender Sean Dyche.

The Watford hardman has been offered a new deal at Vicarage Road and looks set to stay with the Division One outfit.

Meanwhile former Wanderers speed merchant Jermaine McSporran is stalling over a swift return to the Blues.

Adams, who allowed McSporran to join first division Walsall on Transfer Deadline Day, now wants him back.

He met McSporran last week and offered him terms for next season, but the former Oxford City player will wait and see what else comes up.

He was in Doncaster yesterday talking to the third division champions and has a batch of other clubs to talk to.

He said: "I've spoken to Tony Adams and he said he wants me back as a right sided midfielder which is nice to hear, but I will see how it goes.

"I will weigh up all my options and see what happens."
