

Blues will remain in Division Two

WYCOMBE Wanderers will still be playing in Division Two next season, the Free Press can reveal.

The Blues, who finished bottom of the pile and were convinced they would be playing in Division Three next season, will avoid the ignominy of being in the third division after a radical new re-branding scheme got the go-ahead.

But before Blues fans get too excited, they will still be stuck in the basement division.

It is just that new Football League sponsors Coca Cola want to call it Division Two.

Under their proposals there will be the Premiership and then three Coca Cola Divisions beneath it with the current first division called the Coca Cola Championship and the division Wycombe are in next year called Division Two.

Hot-shot Kidd smashes 100

A WYCOMBE Wanderers youngster looks set for superstardom after rifling in 103 goals last season.

Nine-year-old Lewis Kidd completed his century and more for Scottish outfit Wishaw Wycombe Wanderers by netting no fewer than 103 goals.

The junior hot-shot achieved his amazing feat in just 35 matches and his scoring spree has brought him to the attention of Scottish Premier League clubs Motherwell and Aberdeen.

And his goalscoring exploits are more than just a flash in the pan. On his first season for Wanderers, two years ago, he weighed in with 70 goals.
