

Wanderers will let fans in for nothing

WYCOMBE Wanderers will let supporters in free of charge when they entertain Ian Rush's Chester City on March 12.

Wanderers are hoping that the giant freebie will give them their first full house of the season and encourage supporters to come back for more.

A club spokesman said: "We wish to create such an atmosphere that all who attend the game will want to come back and support the club time and time again."

Brentford did a similar thing three years ago and attracted a full house to Griffin Park.

But fans wanting to get their hands on the free tickets will have to book them in advance as there will be no tickets available on the day.

● Wanderers' reserves will visit Tottenham in a friendly at the Premiership club's training ground tomorrow.
