

Philo fine

MARK Philo has been given the all-clear to join Wanderers' 18-man party which leaves for Lincoln today.

The midfielder, who is building up his fitness after breaking his ankle in a pre-season friendly against Portsmouth, had to be replaced by Ikechi Anya in the reserves match in midweek after pulling up with what looked like a calf strain.

But Philo trained with the team at Bisham Abbey yesterday and is expected to join the squad which will leave for Lincoln today, stopping off en-route to train at Nottingham Forest.

Dad's Army

WANDERERS defenders Stuart Nethercott became a father for the second time last week while fellow centre half Mike Williamson has been at the hospital bedside of his girlfriend this week, who is expecting their first child.
