

Antwi is finally back on the road to recovery

WANDERERS' Will Antwi returned to full training on Monday after getting some help from the Germans.

The defender, who has not played at all following his summer transfer from Aldershot, was put back on the road to recovery by a clinic in Germany which has also treated Alan Shearer and members of the Chelsea squad.

They applied a bit of their special Vorsprung Durch fitness to clear up his troublesome groin problem and get him back on the training pitch again.

Assistant boss Steve Brown said: "He's got such a big smile on his face again.

"It is wonderful to see. It is like getting a new signing."

Antwi this week joined in all the training but will need some reserve matches before he is considered for first team action.

He is hoping to play his first comeback game in the Berks and Bucks Cup at Aylesbury on February 21.

Antwi aggravated a long-standing pelvic injury during his first training session with the Blues.
