

Baby joy for the Gormans

WANDERERS boss John Gorman finally had some good news to cheer at the end of a traumatic week for him when he became a grandfather for the second time.

His daughter Amanda gave birth to baby Josephine on Wednesday to bring the Gormans some much needed cheer.

After spending the day with wife Myra, who is suffering with cancer, Gorman raced to another hospital to welcome the family's new arrival.

He said: "It's been a bad time for the family recently but this is tremendous news at last and it has given everyone, particularly my wife a real boost and she can't wait to see her."

● Charlie Griffin returned to training this week after his ankle ligament injury but it will be a few weeks before he's considered for the first team.

● Wanderers official website has been shortlisted for the Best Club Website awards for Football League clubs.

● Will Antwi is set to travel with the first team to Boston for the first time this weekend following his injury, but he is not expected to feature.
