

Contract talks on hold until after the play-offs

WANDERERS have put all contract talks on hold until after the play-offs.

Seven Chairboys are up for renewal in the summer but they will be kept sweating on their futures until Blues' fate is decided.

The board have decided they don't want anything to distract them from their main aim of winning promotion and with boss John Gorman still away on compassionate leave, Blues aren't in a position to act now.

Williams, Keith Ryan and Stuart Nethercott are all up for renewal with non contract player Rob Lee's future also still to be decided.

Keith Ryan has already announced his retirement while Stuart Nethercott has been on loan at Woking.

Defender Clint Easton is hoping he will be offered a new deal even though he has found himself in and out of the side recently.

He said: "The board have told us they are not going to do anything until the end of the season and I can see that. We all know where we stand, hopefully I can get a goal or put in a winning cross in the play-off final to earn a new contract.

"I want to stay. I'm settled here. I love the club, the supporters and there is a great set-up here.

"The set up is definitely geared to the division above, if not touching the Championship. I love it here. For me it is perfect and I would love to sign again."

And he says even though he has struggled lately, he still want to stay.

He said: "It's not been the best of times for me recently but I can't blame the gaffer. We've been losing games and he's been trying to find the winning formula.

"It hurts when you're not playing but the manager can only pick 11 and if you're not in that you've got to support the lads and take your chance when it comes."
