

The headline act

'I had a feeling I would score'

SERGIO Torres was the least surprised person in Adams Park when he headed home Wanderers' winner against Bury on Saturday - he knew it was coming.

The Argentine Man of the Match said: "I had a feeling I would score.

"I don't know why but on Friday night I was thinking about the game and just had a feeling I would score.

"It wasn't a dream, just a feeling that I would score and it happened. Hopefully I'll have the same feeling again next week."

No-one could have predicted Torres, who thrilled fans with a more typical weaving run and goal against Oxford during pre-season, would open his League account with a towering header Alan Shearer in his pomp would have been proud of.

Manager Paul Lambert said: "It was a brilliant header from a really talented footballer, but if you had to pick someone on the pitch to head a goal he'd probably be the last one you'd pick."

And Torres himself admitted his conversion rate of headers could be improved.

He said: "It was the first header I've ever scored so I was a little bit surprised.

"I thought I should have got the first one [an even better chance which Torres headed high]. It was close but went over the bar, but I'm really happy with the one I did score.

"The manager [Paul Lambert] is always saying to me and Martin Bullock that we have to get into the box and help the two strikers to score and I think I did that.

"I got two chances and scored one so I'm really pleased."

And after Blues' winless start, the midfielder said the three points did not come before time.

He said: "It was important to get three points after the start we've had.

"I thought the first half against Accrington we were very good but we couldn't score.

"Bury was similar. We played very well and created many chances but this time we scored one and won the game.

"We need to score more goals, but we're playing well and now we've got the first win and are moving up the table we need to keep winning."
