

High esteem: Scott McGleish

Scott is an inspiration

VETERAN striker Scott McGleish is playing the best football of his life according to boss Paul Lambert.

The 34-year-old hitman is topping the club's scoring charts with 20 goals – and even though he failed to notch at Rochdale his work around the pitch left Lambert drooling.

He said: Scott was terrific. He works hard all over the pitch. People have this perception that good players don't work hard but they do, in fact they work the hardest to be honest and Scott's workrate is second to none.

“He is unbelievable for a 34 year-old. His enthusiasm and desire is brilliant and if the younger players can look at him and learn then they won't have bad careers themselves.”

Meanwhile McGleish's strike partner Leon Knight says there is much more to come from him. The £50K man scored the winner at Rochdale to notch his second in Blues colours and then said he will be even hotter when he's fully match-fit.

He said: “There's much more to come from me. I'm probably only 80 per cent match fit.”

Hat-trick hopefuls

WANDERERS are in the running for three awards at football's version of The Oscars – the Four-Four-Two Awards on Sunday night.

The Chairboys have been shortlisted in three categories – Community Club of the Year, Family Club of the Year and Best Community Initiative for their Ramadan Project.

No other club has been nominated for more awards this year than Wanderers who will travel in style in chauffeur driven limousines, laid on by sponsors UK Limousines to the event at the London Hilton in Park Lane.

And there could be more awards coming Blues' way as well with the top 50 Players in the Football League due to be unveiled.
