

Doc's two-year deal ends Colchester's interest

WANDERERS midfielder Tommy Doherty has signed a two-year deal at Adams Park ending Colchester United's interest in the former Northern Ireland midfielder.

The 30-year-old, pictured left, penned the extended deal this week pledging his allegiance to the Blues until 2012.

His signature ends Colchester's interest in the former Bristol City and QPR star.

Former Wanderers boss Paul

Lambert is a huge admirer of the Doc and he had tried to sign him for the Essex club.

● Peter Taylor says he would happily make Wednesday's visit to Windsor an annual fixture.

Keith Scott's side gave up their home dressing room to Wycombe, because Blues had more players, and also presented them with an excellent pitch before giving them a competitive game as well.

Taylor said: "I was very happy. Windsor did everything right and gave us a good game. and I wouldn't have any hesitation coming back here for another one."

● Taylor believes Chris Westwood and Craig Woodman can make Blues' first match at Charlton even though they only start full training today. Both should play at Eastbourne tonight (ko 7.30pm).

Going to Eastbourne tonight
www.eastbourneboroughfc.co.uk