

Wanderers left needing a miracle

WANDERERS need a miracle to save them from an immediate return to League Two after suffering successive defeats over the Easter weekend.

On Saturday they were beaten 2-1 at Adams Park by Huddersfield Town and Gary Waddock's team then slumped to a 2-1 defeat at fellow-strugglers Walsall yesterday.

With most of their relegation rivals picking up points from the Easter period, Blues find themselves in dire straits with just six games left to rescue the situation.

Dean Keates scored a late consolation against Huddersfield but earlier goals from Jordan Rhodes and Theo

Robinson won it for the visitors.

It was a similar story yesterday, with captain Adam Hinshelwood netting after 77 minutes, but first-half goals from Manny Smith and Julian Gray proved enough for Walsall.
