Blues' 125th anniversary

MEMORIES of cup runs, promotions and trips to Wembley will come flooding back for Wycombe Wanderers fans tomorrow as the club celebrates its 125th anniversary.

The game with AFC Wimbledon at Adams Park is the closest day in the fixture calendar to when Blues played their first match in 1887.

Playing heroes Keith Scott, Dave Carroll, John Maskell and record appearance holder and goalscorer Tony 'Bodger' Horseman will all be introduced to the crowd before the game.

Scott, who scored nearly 100 goals during two spells at Adams Park, said: "That club meant a lot to me. There are lots of fantastic memories, winning the FA Trophy, winning the championship.

"I played for 17 years as a pro and was fortunate enough to play in the Premier League but my overriding memory is being part of a squad that took a non league team into the Football League.

"It's something written in history - it can't be eclipsed. Anything and everything the club achieved thereafter is a result of that group of players and management taking the club forward."

Tomorrow a number of items from the club's past will be on show, 125 blue balloons will be released as the players take to the field.

Fans aged six-16 can win a prize from the balloon release by heading to a marquee from 1pm.
