Wanderers have been transformed this season under Gareth Ainsworth.

Milestone for Hayes as Blues keep climbing

WANDERERS continue to climb up the table as they moved to second in League Two with victory over Cambridge United on Saturday.

Paul Hayes' scrambled second half goal was enough to seal a sixth win from ten league matches this season and keep Blues' upward momentum going.

The goal marked a significant personal milestone for captain Hayes, as it was the 100th Football League goal of his career.

In April Wanderers sat second from bottom of the league table – now, after a reversal of fortune, they're one off the top after collecting 21 points already.

Their latest win came after surviving an early battering from their visitors before going on to control the rest of the contest and stretch their unbeaten run to seven matches.

Cambridge had their first shot of the game after just four seconds as Kwesi Appiah burst forward straight from the kick off before pulling his shot wide.

Some last-ditch defending kept the Wycombe goal intact as Robbie Simpson was twice denied by lunging blocks, former Burnham striker Ryan Bird was foiled by Alfie Mawson and Harrison Dunk was kept out by Peter Murphy.

Blues gradually got a foothold in the game as Aaron Pierre headed inches over after ghosting in unmarked at the far post, Josh Scowen's fiercely-hit effort flashed just wide and keeper Chris Dunn saved at the feet of Sam Wood after the hosts worked open the visiting defence.

Dunk was agonisingly close to breaking the deadlock in the second half as his angled shot across the face of goal missed the target by a whisker, before Blues came even closer as a flying header from Matt McClure came back into play after ping-pong off the angle of post and crossbar.

Finally they managed to force their way in front as a Paris Cowan-Hall header from a left wing cross caused panic in the visiting defence and Hayes reacted first to bundle home from close range and net his fifth goal of the campaign.

Blues are at home again on Saturday as they host Northampton Town.

Rob Miller moved to fly half on Sunday.

In-form Wasps go fifth

WASPS are up to fifth in the Aviva Premiership after a bonus point victory over Newcastle Falcons at Adams Park on Sunday.

Without ever hitting their top form, they cruised to a 35-18 win thanks to two tries from Tom Varndell and further scores from Rob Miller and James Gaskell.

Meanwhile, director of rugby Dai Young says he won't be adding an international class ten to their list as a replacement for the injured Ruaridh Jackson.

Young said: "There aren't many teams happy to give us their tens. Charity doesn't stretch that far.

"We have scoured the earth but there are very few top notch tens bobbing about not going anywhere and happy to come to Wasps.

"We have got what we have got."

Goff pulls away from Wycombe rival in BTCC

JACK Goff stole a march on his High Wycombe rival Tom Ingram in the British Touring Car Championships at Silverstone last weekend.

Goff put together a consistent set of results to move on to 111 points in the overall standings, while Ingram's weekend was beset by problems leaving him on 95 points overall.

Goff came home 11th in race one and showed his pace again in race two when he set the fastest lap to finish 14th.

He came home tenth in race three, while Ingram's weekend was dogged by punctures and penalties as he added 26th and 19th place finishes to a retirement in race one.
