Thousands to follow Blues to their Wembley showdown

Fans snap up tickets for showpiece promotion decider

WANDERERS hope over 15,000 supporters will travel to Wembley to roar them on in the League Two play-off final.

When the Bucks Free Press went to print on Thursday night the club had sold more than 14,000 tickets for their game against Southend.

Both clubs were allocated just over 21,000 tickets for the final and anyone hoping to get their hands on a ticket must do so through Ticketmaster before noon today.

The ticket website was originally due to stop selling at 5pm but that was bought forward in order to ensure both clubs stopped selling their allocation at the same time.

Wembley and the Football League are yet to confirm whether tickets will be available at the stadium on Saturday.

The Shrimpers' sales had hit 19,000 at the time of their last announcement at 2pm on Thursday afternoon.

Two people who will be following Wycombe to the national stadium are twin brothers and Hazlemere residents Chris and Dan Logue (pictured).
