

Wycombe Wanderers Women were unable to capitalise on a bright start to their game at Abingdon on Sunday, ultimately going down to a 4-2 defeat.

The Chairgirls started the game on the front foot, dominating possession and territory as they penned Abingdon Town into their own half. They were duly rewarded when Emma Newberry's speculative cross was bundled home by Chante Inniss, who was unfortunately injured in the process and forced to be substituted off.

Wycombe continued to dominate and looked on course for a routine victory when they concede a penalty against the run of play, which went on to affect their rhythm and conceded two more goals before the break.

The Chairgirls rallied in the second half and were able to win and convert a penalty of their own only to have it cancelled out when Abingdon were awarded another penalty late on, which put an end to any comeback.

Manager Carl Simon said: "This is the second game running where we have allowed the opposition a way back into the game by conceding a needless penalty. It's hard to take because I know how hard these players work in training but, we are making decisions at the moment that are hurting us.

"We need to find solutions and to capitalise on our build-up play. We will continue to try and improve on these things going forward."

WWFC Women are next in action on Sunday 6th November against Ascot United (Away).

Wycombe Wanderers Women Reserves took their league form into the cup with a 7-2 win against Milton Keynes City on Sunday.

The first half started brilliantly for the Chairgirls as Amy Norfolk, Ruby Paish and Charlie Potter (2) all got themselves onto the scoresheet before MK City replied to make it 4-1 at the break.

Potter continued her fine form in the second half and went on to score two more goals, making it 6-1 to the Chairgirls. MK City did all they could to fight back and got some reward when they capitalised on a Chairgirls mistake to score their second of the game. Despite their best efforts to pull it back, the last goal of the game was scored by Keira O'Leary who made the final score 7-2 to the Chairgirls.

Manager Jaymie Bailey said: "Overall, it was a good performance and a result that takes us into Round Two of the TVCWF Cup."

The Reserves are next in action on Sunday 6th November against Easington Sports Ladies (Home).
