

Attendees at the special Iftar event at Adams Park earlier this month have written to the Wycombe Wanderers Foundation to thank the club and its charitable arm for "planting a seed of inclusivity" and "giving hope" that football can be a vehicle for bringing different cultures within the local community more closely together.

The Iftar was attended by more than 100 members of the local Muslim community, with representatives from the club, Trust and Foundation also present, sharing a meal and taking prayers on the pitch.

One participant wrote: "Thank you very much for organising such a thoughtful community Iftar. It was a very special evening to be a part of and shall remain in the memories of all the attendees, young and elder. The fact that you not only organised the event but actually fasted too is a testament to your desire to empathise and understand the true essence of Ramadan.

"You've planted a seed of inclusivity within those young minds that may have never considered a role in the club. You've taken down a barrier! You've given hope to the parents that may have never sent their children to football practice because it wasn't for them. Those little faces reuniting with some of the football coaches will create a beautiful connection. There's so much that is achieved in such a grand gesture, the ripples of which will steadily follow for years to come."

Another said: "I just wanted to say a big thank you to you and all your team at Wycombe Wanderers Foundation for your very kind gesture to the Muslim community in hosting a wonderful evening during this blessed month.

"My family and I were really impressed with the organisation, the amount of planning and work that went in to this event from the Foundation and the Football Club was evident and this made it such a memorable and successful evening.

"Praying on the pitch at sunset was a lovely touch from the Football Club and greatly appreciated."
